

TAIS INVENTORY INSTRUCTIONS

Congratulations, you have been selected to take The Attentional and Interpersonal Style inventory (TAIS), the only assessment instrument in the world that is directly related to performance. The purpose of doing this is to help you learn your strengths and soft-spots so we're better equipped to help you win.

Here's a sample report for viewing:

Please follow these instructions online:

Go to: www.enhanced-performance.com/tais

Username: davidson

Password: tais

There you'll be asked for some demographic data. Just enter the necessary fields highlighted, the asterisk indicates "must have" data. And please make sure to list your Organization, or the employer(company) who requested you complete the inventory.

Comparison Group Options: Please select: "Business Executives" if in sales, "Corporate CEO's" if a business owner. The purpose of this "norm group" is to give you a comparison; a benchmark to determine how far you are from an average. I'll explain this further when we review the results together. We'll look at how you stack up to some of the best performers in business today.

When you begin the tais inventory, please do not click on your answer more than once, let the screen advance on its own to the next question. It should take you about 30 minutes to complete the assessment. Answer the questions as you see yourself, not as you should be. There is no benefit to "fake good" to be more appealing or appear as if you "walk on water". Any untruthful answers or trends are detectable by your coach. We know that each one of us has limitations and managing them with a clear view of the real "you" is smarter than trying to be all things to all people. A dragster doesn't get great gas mileage, in other words.

Once you've finished all 144 questions, please click to end the inventory. Once I receive your results, we'll be getting together to collectively validate the findings and develop an action plan.

Thank you very much,
